Giudecca 795 dedicates a wide-ranging one-man exhibition to Vito Campanelli: "Sous le rouge". Twenty works (2007-2008) making a strong impact and representing today's colour: red.

The artist seems to get lost in a thrilling dream made of full-blooded perceptions and purplish pulsations, of impetus and desire. Shapes converge and then convert again into others; crimson drops slide and ooze away in close and continuous dialogue with black, a colour of negation and abandonment.

The painting surface creates pressure between relics of shapes and colour vibrations ending in frames of moods swung by the influence of the present-day life. Despite maintaining such a stirring effect, the peace and quiet resulting from it is still disarming.

Vito Campanelli (1962) starts out in painting as an autodidact when he is only thirteen. After his first collective exhibition at the age of seventeen, he then goes on relentlessly with his own artistic path along the abstract and informal.
